THE OUBC APPEAL

For 150 years the OUBC has been the parent body of all rowing at the University. To provide for the needs of the next 150 years the OUBC Trust Fund has mounted a major Appeal to build a rowing centre at the Iffley Road track. This centre will encompass an indoor rowing tank, a gymnasium specially for rowers and a boat house. The facilities will be for the whole university.

For full details, and to make a donation please contact:

MICHAEL PELHAM (TREASURER) OUBC TRUST FUND
52 VICARAGE ROAD, HENLEY ON THAMES, OXFORDSHIRE RG9 1HU
TEL: 0962 882222 (DAY)

At the beginning of the year, OUBC's direction was obvious; consolidate the gains of the previous year and build upon them. It was a quiet year, though no less significant for it, as a great deal of learning and growth was to take place both institutionally and individually. Only two Blues returned in the fall, so 'new blood' had to be found to fill some rather big shoes. Cambridge, with a professional coach and impressive Fours' Head results, made our job more difficult still.

I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the people most responsible for this year's success, the oarsmen and coxes. Without each one, those who rowed in the Blue Boat, and those who did not, the final results would have been far different. For what we achieved together, I thank you.

The newcomers to the squad were young, but determined and the final selection was agonizingly difficult. Paul Gleeson and Terry Dillon, two men of obvious experience, joined the squad in January and added a maturity which was to stand the boat in good stead in the final two months. Once together, the boat went well, with an impressive row at the Reading head, beating a Leander crew with five internationals on board. A disappointing loss, by one length, to the University of London a fortnight before was a hard blow, but we learned a few lessons and spent the final fortnight honing our skills. After the weigh-in, the press wrote us off as has-beens, largely due to several pints of water and many a cream pie consumed to make Cambridge nearly a stone-a-man heavier.

The Boat Race, as many observed, was one of the most exciting in recent memory (believe me!) It was not an easy race. The underdogs going in, we lost the toss, but Cambridge's choice of Surrey proved that a fair wind might yet blow in our favour. The first mile was a war of wills between the crews and coxswains alike. Inexorably, the battle of blades and steersmen took its toll; slowly we began to pull away, a length clear by the mile and nearly two by Hammersmith. Cambridge then began to push, determined not to let us go, waiting for the smaller crew to crack under the weight. But, that, was not to be.

Isis had won a similar battle an hour before which will hold OUBC in good stead for the future. Congratulations also to O.U.W.B.C for OSIRIS' win. I would like to thank our Director, Steve Royle, ably assisted by John Pilgrim-Morris, our other coaches, especially Pat Sweeney, Mike Spracklen, Fred Smallbone, Tim Branfitt, Cliff Smedley, and Hertford. I wish good luck to all participants in Summer Eights.

I dedicate my year's efforts to my father.

A large and successful Windrush squad which trained and raced from the end of Eights to mid-July last year provided a supply of O.U.W.B.C. trialists well prepared to join the returning members of the victorious 1988 Blue Boat and Osiris – six rowers and a cox – in a uniform autumn programme of rowing, weightlifting, running, and erging. After Autumn Fours, a squad of 16 moved to Radley College to train in eights, and a second squad of 8 trained on the Isis. Three Trial Eights rowed as fixed crews for a fortnight and then met in a mock Boat Race over the Henley course in December.

Before Christmas the squad journeyed (and this was a journey featuring an overloaded minibus, a wayward dog, caffeine injections, and a late evening blow-out on a remote roundabout) to Totnes in South Devon for a preliminary selection camp. Two eights and two fours took top prizes – jugs of cider – in a head race on the River Dart.

After Christmas the squad returned to Henley for final (we thought ...) selections. The Blue Boat and Osiris moved to Carmel College in Wallingford, when we dodged schoolboy scullers and occasionally traded pranks with the OUBC.

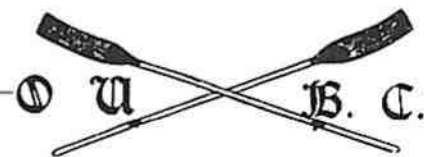

Inconsistent rowing by the Blue Boat and good rowing by Osiris caused the coaches to question selection decisions, but out of uncertainty about what was wrong with the Blue Boat, we decided to let the crew settle. After a match against the Thames RC on the Tideway, when Osiris rowed impressively and the Blue Boat floundered, we swapped half of Osiris into the Blue Boat and deliberated for two more valuable weeks over which members of the original Blue Boat to keep there.

The crews as recast raced well at the Reading Head and the Women's Head, from which the results, showing both Cambridge crews faster than ours, leave out of account our low starting positions and our recent disruptions. Both crews felt they had at least an even chance of winning the Boat Race.

In the Osiris-Blondie race, Blondie were fast off the line and stayed ahead of Osiris, rating too low, until the Barrier. Then, with 500 metres to go, Osiris took a burn which transferred them into a winning crew, and in coming from behind to win by a boatlength they accomplished the most memorable sort of victory.

In the Blue Boat race, Cambridge predicted the starting commands so well that they were able to go before the umpire even said them. Oxford, taken by surprise, were sloppy off the start and failed to find their rhythm. Several attempted pushes made no real mark on Cambridge, and Oxford came across the line a length down without ever making the necessary change of gear.

Many thanks to the coaches and others who saw us through our crises and successes, especially Pete Budbury, Derek Thurgood, Steve Walter, John Pilgrim-Morris, Rob Clay, Geoff Page, and Steve Royle. May the road to the next Boat Race be straighter. And meanwhile, good luck to everybody rowing in Eights.

Summer Eights 1988

Though the weather for Eights Week last year was not spectacular, the rowing at the top end of the Men's First Division was of some interest to the connoisseur. Oriel rowed over Head each day by about four or five lengths, tending to take this lead early on, and then settle. University, with a heavy if slightly unrefined crew, had an impressive week, harrying New College, the second-place crew, on each of the first three days: on the Saturday, however, New College pulled out all the stops and left University about four lengths behind at the finish. Oriel responded in kind by leaving New College, once again, a similar distance back.

There was, in fact, only one bump in the top six crews: that of St. Edmund Hall on Worcester. Further down, though, there was more excitement. Hertford entered the First Division and got seven bumps in the process. On the last day they had to achieve an over-bump on Wadham, as St. John's, starting ahead of them, had quickly bumped out on a rather slow Balliol crew. The required over-bump was obtained, not least due to a crab in the Wadham boat.

Blades were also won by Brasenose, in the Second Division, starting with a bump on Oriel II who had hit the bank in the Gut. This set them up for bumps on the rapidly descending Exeter and Queen's (both later bumped by Oriel II) and on St. Catherine's.

The Women's Headship was taken with some ease by Osler House, who bumped St. Hugh's and then the reigning Head Crew, Somerville, on the first two days, and then rowed over well clear, with seven lengths on the Saturday. A feature of the Osler crew was good technical ability and cohesion maintained at higher rates than the rest of the Division.

St. Hugh's, who remained third, stayed together until ninth week, when they won one of the two Collegiate prizes on offer at the inaugural Henley Women's Regatta, beating University in the final, and recording a faster time than the winner of the other prize (Churchill Coll. Cambridge).

There was doubt in the minds of some onlookers over the relative speeds of Oriel, the Head crew, and Hertford, while the rash actually reported that the latter were in fact faster. A local publican even offered the money for a wager-match between the two: but apart from endangering the oarsmen's amateur status, this was thought to detract from the honour attaching to the Headship itself, and the contest did not take place. Earlier in the term, however, Oriel had shown their speed by reaching the Finals of the Leyland DAF "Power Sprints," televised on Channel 4; they were, however, unable to compete due to the event's coincidence with Eights Week.

The poor weather could not dampen this year's racing, especially on the Saturday when unabated rain did not deter a healthy crowd from watching the rowing.

The headship was held with ease by Oriel for the eighteenth consecutive year. There was speculation that New College were faster than the Head crew but Christ Church held them off on the Friday only falling prey to them going up the Greenbank on Saturday after a long struggle. Both Brasenose and Hertford climbed up the First Division whilst Keble, Oriel II and Pembroke fell (the latter into the Second Division.) The result of these changes was that the finishing order on the final day was an accurate reflection of the relative speeds of the top crews.

University blasted their way up and out of the Second Division past the plummeting Pembroke, with five impressive bumps. In the same division Wadham gained their blades. It must be said that the general standard of oarsmanship was high and undoubtedly New College weighed in with the best overall performance, with several of their crews gaining blades.

Once again the top of the Women's Divisions was dominated by Osler House and Somerville. The latter proving to be strong challengers on all four days. However Osler held them off successfully and rowed over to finish Head. Further down, Wadham's bid for the Headship faltered when they narrowly missed Somerville on the third day.

Certain crews – for example, St. Hugh's II – suffered spectacular drops which made the progress of crews in all divisions a fascinating affair. This year, with two rowing-on divisions, saw more women's crews than ever on the Isis; one hopes that the extended programme will encourage even more to participate in future.

The Importance of Being Bumped

FROM VOCES ACADEMICAE
BY C.G. ROBINSON

SCENE — The barge of St. Theresa's
TIME — About 4.15 p.m., i.e., just before the Second Division races.
OCCASION — The Summer Eights races.

FREDDY [presently, in a low voice] I say, Nora, what on earth are you talking to that fellow for? He's the biggest bouncer in college — an awful little cad!

NORA [with the innocence of the soft answer] That is no reason why I should be rude to him, is it? Anyway, he had the politeness to get us chairs, and that is more than the gentlemen of the college did.

F. [wincing and sulkily] Oh, well, of course if you choose to make a spectacle of yourself — [turning away in high dudgeon to find consolation by sporting in the shade of Amaryllis' parasol.]

MALE COUSIN [languidly] What a bore! There's the five minutes' gun; they'll be here directly.

FEMALE COUSIN [insinuatingly] I thought you were going to bet me something on your boat.

[She looks pensively at her well-gloved hand.]

M. C. [with male superiority] So I shall. But Terry's — our boat, you know — doesn't row in the Second Division with all these crocks.

F. C. [naïvely] Is that the proper name for an eight?

M. C. Oh, come, you know what a crock is.

F. C. You are not a crock, I think?

M. C. [stroking his moustache] Lord! I hope not.

[A tornado of excitement swoops down on everybody. The front rows of visitors crane their necks in every direction but the right one; the back rows lean on the front rows in a mannerless endeavour to pierce the waving labyrinth of hats and parasols, or clamber on to the chairs pell mell. Even the bored paterfamilias are faintly fluttered, and tread on each other's toes unscrupulously. At first there is nothing to see but a clean stretch of grey-green river, lined with women-laden barges. Presently the boats, followed by a dense, perspiring mob, emerge from The Gut, and struggle into view, and so pass the spectators, with varying fortunes, amid feverish yells from the crowded bank, answered by more feverish yells from the barges, the delirious splutter of rattles and pistols, sackbut, dulcimer, and all other kinds of undergraduate music. The floodgates are opened to a torrent of excited, skilled criticisms or insensate apostrophes.]

FIRST VOICE [frantically] They're spurting, by Gad! Aren't they tucking them in! Now they're shooting.

SECOND VOICE [screaming] They're washed off! Put your beef into it, you beggars!

THIRD VOICE [gutturally] Knifed them, by Jove! I knew those chaps couldn't last.

FOURTH VOICE. Five's a bad sight in that boat — mere luggage and a cruel bucket.

GUSHING YOUNG LADY [effusively] Oh! don't they look sweet?

PROFANE UNDERGRAD [with the air of Nero surveying burning Rome] That'll gruel them a bit. Aren't they cooked? Ah! that's where they call for their Pa's and Ma's.

MISS JULIET [with a suppressed shriek as her chair rocks] Oh, I know I shall fall!

MR. ROMEO [consolingly] No you won't. Just take my hand, and you'll be all right.

MISS. J. [demurely] May I?

[They clasp hands operatically, and continue to clasp fervently long after the race is over.]

MR. R. Now you're almost safe.

[He wonders whether he would be justified in offering delicate support to a very trim waist, and finally decides to do so, and risk the consequences.]

EXQUISITE DECADENT [pushing back his lank hair] It makes one perspire to see them.

[He leans in an Aubrey Beardsley attitude against the balustrade, and flicks his face delicately with a pale green silk handkerchief.]

NEIL [who is looking after his chum's people, i.e., his chum's sister] There is Paul's crew [pointing to a boat very hard pressed].

MRS ROLLES Oh, where? where? [She gapes wildly up and down, and presently spies her firstborn doing wonders at "3"] Dear boy! I hope he won't tire himself too much.

PAUL'S SISTER [critically] Ought he to crook his back like that? He looks exactly like a dromedary.

PATERFAMILIAS [grimly from the back-ground] I am glad there is something he does work at.

[Paul catches a very bad crab, and his boat is promptly bumped.]

HIS MOTHER [indignantly, when the occurrence has been explained] What a shame! How mean of them to take advantage of an accident! It is so like men. Anyone could see, too, he was quite exhausted.

F. A. [carelessly] Yes; and his heart is rather weak.

M. [palpitatingly] Paul's heart weak! He should never have rowed. I always said so. They oughtn't to permit such things. I shall certainly speak to the President about it.

F. A. [tamely, not liking this development] I meant sentimentally weak, not physically weak. [Smiling at P.'s sister] It's a very common complaint up here, due to the enervating Oxford air – and – [looking her suggestively in the face] the influence of the external environment.

[P.'s mother is appeased]

FIRST OLD STAGER [sententiously] Rowing is not what it used to be in our days, eh?

SECOND DITTO [still more sententiously] None of those new-fangled dodges when you and I rowed head of the river. It was muscles and grit, and not tricks then. Do you remember that night when?—

[He meanders into the usual string old-stager anecdotes.]

CHARMING BUT INQUISITIVE YOUNG LADY You row? How delightful! You can tell me all about it. Now why are they called Bumps?

CAPTAIN OF THE BOATS [feebly] Oh! ah – because – er – well, they do bump, don't they?

I. Y. L. [sceptically] Do they? I thought they only tried to. And a bump ought to hurt. Now, does it hurt you to be bumped?

C. B. [still more feebly] Oh! well – you know – in one sense –

I. Y. L. [smiling serenely] Only in one sense? Now when I am bumped I feel it in every sense.

I. Y. L. Now you must tell me all about the sandwich boat. It rows twice, doesn't it?

C. B. [feeling on safer ground, lucidly] Yes; it rows first in the second division that rows first, you know, and last in the first division that rows second.

I. Y. L. [surveying him narrowly, to see that he isn't joking] I see. But why does it row first of the – first division that rows – first, did you say? Oh, no, second? or is it second in the second that? [She stops perplexed, and basely takes shelter in a flattering look.]

C. B. [carefully] It is the connecting link, you know –

I. Y. L. The missing link, I think you mean.

C. B. [ignoring the remark] And so it has to row first in the second

I. Y. L. [repeating his words] Yes; and [triumphantly] – then it rows first in the first, doesn't it?

C. B. [despairingly wiping his brow and glancing round like a hunted animal] Oh, no; don't you see that if –

I. Y. L. [counting on her fingers] I see now; but there is no difference. Why should it row twice if it is in the same place? [Her tone suggests that he is on oath.]

C. B. [with the feeling that this way lies a betrothal] But there is a difference; it is first in the second division, and –

I. Y. L. [wildly] And second in the first! You have made it beautifully clear. Thank you so much. [She then proceeds to inflict his lucid explanation with entirely original emendations on a reluctant mother.]

FIRST AVERAGE UNDERGRAD. Hallo, Jerry, you look very down in the mouth.

SECOND DITTO [gloomily] Well, I've just asked my cousin's cousin to tea, and she refused because she's going to tea instead with her cousin's cousin.

FIRST A. U. [cheerily] Never mind, you Juggins; come to tea with me at my digs tomorrow. [Dropping his voice] I've got Dulcie Lightfoot and the pas de quatre of "The Frolicsome Firefly" teeing with me tomorrow, and –

SECOND A. U. [admiringly] You dawg! oh, you dawg!

FIRST A. U. [confidentially] Don't tell anyone, but they've promised to dance after tea. Better fun than towing females to the Eights, eh?

SECOND A. U. [laughing appreciatively] And you put your people off because you had schools on?

FIRST A. U. [quietly] Ah! bless the schools! Besides, the Eights are not much catch when you can have Dulcie to tea. She's the only Eights visitor worth asking. It's an infernal pity the company's only down for three nights.

[The two retire to arrange the programme in a Canadian canoe, while the remainder of the visitors return to the barges for a second instalment of the races. The previous scene with the requisite variations is then patiently repeated and as patiently endured.]

For training we have some outrageous colour schemes to choose from. Lycra shorts and vests separately available, also for winter training suits with long legs and/or long sleeves.

Selection and training for this year's lightweight squad began as long ago as last May, with two Vllls selected and entered for Henley. With the start of the new academic year proper trialling of the fifty or so eager oarsmen (and a few coxes) could begin. Initially all trialists were viewed on the Isis in Vllls under the watchful eyes of Roger Batty and others, but later training involved a move into sculls and pairs.

The squad was cut to 24 after our own Lightweights Sculling Head on the Isis and moved up to Godstow in IVs in preparation for the Tideway IVs Kingston Small Boats Heads. Extra coaches including Steve Royle, Richard Hull and John Pilgrim-Morris were persuaded to come along to help, and great emphasis was laid upon the acquisition of basic technique to build a foundation for later training.

After good results in the Heads (the fastest lightweight IV was as fast as some of the OUBC trial IVs and finished 90th). David Lister joined the coaching team and the squad was cut again to two matched trial Vllls.

A week before Christmas at Henley – with David Lister and his canine companion George – was broken up by a brief trip to the Tideway for the OUBC trials race.

The squad of 16 recovered after Christmas for a successful week at Nottingham rowing at Holmepierre Pont and on the Trent under the guidance of John Wilson, who also taught us all some new tricks on the ergo! The final selection of crews was made upon our return to Oxford. The Boat Race crew had an intensive training programme under David Lister at Godstow, Radley and Reading in preparation for the Lightweight Boat Race at Henley in March. Meanwhile Nephthys (the lightweight reserve crew) trained studiously up at Godstow under Roger Batty for the Tideway Vllls Head. For those in Nephthys, the disappointment of not making the Boat Race crew was compensated for by not needing to diet any longer!!

Both crews entered Head races through-out the season with some good performances, the Boat Race crew won the S1 pennant at Burway and Nephthys the S11 pennant at the Head of Trent, finishing in 5th overall.

By the middle of March, both crews were ready for their respective races. Nephthys raced first, and finished a respectable 44th in the Tideway Vllls Head. The next day, the Boat Race crew raced Cambridge at Henley. Cambridge gained a lead over Oxford with an impressive start and settled down to a "stride" rating of 40, which was maintained over the whole course. Oxford were slower off the mark and strode down to 37. At the finish, Cambridge were 3 lengths ahead. Times recorded were 5:57:05 and 6:02:07 respectively.

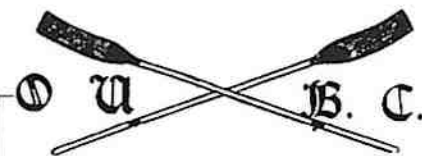

It is disheartening to report such a disappointing end to the season. However, the training and selection of oarsmen for next year's squad has already begun, and hopefully it will be possible to learn from the lessons of this year to finally end Cambridge's winning run. Any interested oarsmen or coxes are invited to contact me as soon as possible.

MANAGEMENT CONSULTANCY Take off with Andersen Consulting

To ensure your career takes off we fly you to Chicago

Within four weeks of joining Andersen Consulting, all our new graduates find themselves sitting in the departure lounge at Heathrow Airport. Their destination is Chicago and a three week spell at our International Training and Development Centre.

However, this is just the start of an in-depth training programme that will foster carefully the technical, business and managerial skills of each young consultant. A thoroughly professional programme that will develop the broad-based experience necessary to tackle an unusually wide range of challenges...

As the world's largest management consultancy we specialise in applying technology-based solutions to complex business problems. Our teams analyse carefully the client's individual needs and provide a high quality professional service that incorporates the full range of potential of advanced information technology. This spectrum of skills and services has attracted 'blue-chip' clients including many of the major insurance, banking, manufacturing, engineering and retail companies as well as government departments and health authorities... a client portfolio which calls for consultancy talent of the very highest calibre. Graduates who succeed with us start with a good quality honours degree in any discipline. They possess the confidence, maturity and diplomacy to impress our clients at all levels and also enjoy exceptional prospects.

Our culture is geared to rapid career and salary progression based entirely on merit with the genuine prospect of partnership in a person's early 30's.

If you want your career to take off in the right direction please contact: Liz Hopkins, Andersen Consulting, 2 Arundel Street, London WC2R 3LT.
